Science Siftings.

By the autogenous method two sheets of metal may be welded by placing their edges and following the seam with a blowpipe. "Seamless" copper and steel vessels may be made by forming the body and ends separately and tracing the joints with the blowpipe.

A gyroscope was placed on a British torpedo boat, 11% beam and 110 feet long, at Tyneemouth, England. A gale was blowing waves six to eight feet high and a hundred feet long. The vessel was put broadside to the waves, and the maximum inclinations were only 15 degrees. The naval experts believe that the gyroscope will soon be placed in passenger boats.

Household Hints.

Alum helps to make pickles crisp, and horseradish and nasturtium buds prevent the vinegar from becoming moldy.

A bedspread with the worn portions cut out and the good trimmed into shape and hemmed makes excellent towels for the children's use in the bathroom.

As light muslin curtains often catch fire it is a good plan to put an ounce of alum into the last water in which they are rinsed. This will make them almost fireproof, or if they do catch they will not blaze up and start the woodwork.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

A Fixed Institution.

Lyman H. Howe's perennially popular moving pictures, have won such a prestige that they have, in a sense, become a fixed institution in many cities. Gifted with that peculiar faculty which few travelers possess of knowing exactly what is really interesting, his exhibition can always be relied upon for absorbing in all that is really worth while.

He has won the confidence of over a million patrons because for fifteen years he has shown his exhibition has merited it. It is always replete with every scene and incident is reproduced in a way that the spectator can't forget. He brings the most remote nooks and corners of the world directly to us with such fidelity to nature that you can talk about it with confidence and intelligence. You need not go to any other historical happenings. You can see them actually enacted at the opera house on next Wednesday evening.

The reproduction is easier for you, and far more graphic than could be conceived by reading. Mr. Howe's new program combines pleasure and knowledge to an unusual degree and in one most fascinating way. Unlike dramatic attractions, you will derive much substantial information from it which you could not acquire from any other similar exhibition or in any other way. At the same time it is a pure source of much pure and wholesome amusement. Tickets at Kendrick's Monday.

The Jumping Off Place.

"Consumption had me in its grasp; and I had almost reached the jumping off place when I was advised to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and I want to say right now it saved my life. Improvement began with the first bottle, and after taking one dozen bottles I was a well and happy man again," says George Moore of Grimsland, N. C. As a remedy for coughs and colds and healer of weak, sore throats and for prevention of pneumonia, New Discovery is supreme. 50c and $1.00 at the Red Cross pharmacy. Trial bottle free.

A Preferred Pose.

He tied to her, but cleverly! His lies, indeed, had naught of malice's presence. They tripped his lips all garbed in flattery's guise—
Some would not call them lies, but compliments!
And she one day, upon that the mask of flattery she with instant protest wore. Took him, for playing thus a part, to task—
Begged that he'd be himself, and lie no more.

He took her at her word. Thereafter spoke
As truthful self decreed—and how he called.
He never laughed with her at pointless jokes.
He never grew ecstatic when he called. And she—she took him quick to task again.
Saying: "Your real self, dear, lacks spice and zest.
Your honest side's so vacuous, inane, I like you as a clever liar best!"

Vermont Savings Bank

Money Should be Used in Vermont.

From the Northfield News.

The largest advertiser in Vermont is ex-Governor Carroll S. Page of Hyde Park, one of the state's best and most progressive citizens.

No individual or corporation in existence has better demonstrated the practical value of judicious but at the same time liberal advertising than Governor Page.

Governor Page has not only won a wide reputation as a dealer in hides, but he has gained an enviable standing which extends far beyond the limit of his own state as a financier.

At the head of the financial institutions of Hyde Park, he has carried his ideas of banking methods to a complete success.

One of the cardinal principles in the latter line has been "Vermont money in Vermont to foster state industries and to develop Vermont enterprises." He points with pride to the fact that the Hyde Park Savings bank under his direction has never loaned a dollar outside of the state, and, furthermore, has never lost a single dollar by a bad loan.

A large business has been built up in this banking institution by local advertising. Last year Governor Page decided that this bank had better have more deposits and a vigorous advertising campaign was started in the state press, largely with the weekly papers, with the result that nearly a quarter of a million dollars was gained in deposits in six months.

The campaign has not let up and the deposits are still rapidly increasing. It looks as if the Governor intended to make Hyde Park famous in the financial world as it is in the hide markets of every civilized nation.

The great success which Governor Page has won in the commercial and financial world has unquestionably been due to strict integrity, a devotion to sound business principles, and the use of progressive methods, coupled with a liberal use of printer's ink.

ARTILLERY CURIOSITIES.

Old Time Cannon That Were Made of Leather, Wood and Rock.

Among the curiosities of artillery odd inventions have a great place. Cannon have been made of the most unlikely materials. Leather was used as early as Henry VIII's day at the siege of Boulogne. The very articles were stored in the tower ones, and Evelyn saw them there, inscribed "Non Marti opus est cui non deficit Mercurius." Are they still lying in some corner of a forgotten lumber room? The Scotch employed leather guns in 1640 to batter Lord Conway's fortifications at Newbourn, and they did the work well. Describing the feverish alarm in Paris in 1792, Carlyle says: "One citizen has wrought out the scheme of a wooden cannon, which France shall exclusively profit by in the first instance. It is to be made of staves by the coopers, of almost boundless caliber, but uncertain as to strength."

Two small pieces brought to France by the Siamese ambassadors as presents from their king to Louis XIV. were the only artillery procurable for the attack on the Bastille—of eccentric model no doubt, adorned with dragons and golden inscriptions, but efficient workmanship. We read of gold cannon in India. There were two so described at Baroda in Burton's time, "to which regular adoration was offered." In fact, the tubes were of steel, but the massive gold casing cost £20,000.

For the defense of Malta in the old days the knights "invented a kind of ordinance of their own, unknown to all the world beside," says Brydson, an eyewitness. They followed out the natural rock here and there in such fashion that the cavity was like a mortar, put a barrel of gunpowder into the hole, plugged it with a wooden disk exactly fitting and heaped miscellaneous projectiles thereupon. About fifty of these singular cannon defended creeks and landing places. Some of them were six feet in diameter and threw 10,000 pounds weight of iron or stone into the air. Doubtless if all went well they would do tremendous execution upon an enemy trying to disembark.

But there are eccentricities still more curious on record. In a tomb on the island of Chinal, near Usamacina, Mexico, was found a cannon four feet eleven inches long of terra cotta, with terra cotta bullets. It is suggested that when Cortes retired after his great flight at Ceutla, Tabasco, the natives copied the Spanish guns in clay, hoping to produce the same results—London Standard.

LIKE THE INFERNO.

Graphic Description of a Climb Over a Volcanic Island.

A climb over a volcanic island in Bering sea is thus described in Outing Magazine by Robert Dunn:

"Cliff sank away into chaos. Upright fans of tuff, crevices like salt crusted wounds, chasms with leopards edged—breathed all like mad. Less steam, but more crinkly and venomous gases. Parched white and red and ocher in their depths, they seemed almost to whistle—yet they did not whistle—a furtive, ambient, high pressure 'Zessho-oo!' Was it sound? Then I would pause and catch only the horrid, overburdened silence.

"The thing seemed more friendly. The sulphur no longer choked. You could have passed a burning bunch of miners' matches under my nose and I would have gulped the fumes like fresh air. But the invisible venom still belched out everywhere, secret and furtive; now from jaws and gashes four feet and more across, no longer red yellow, but with fangs crusted white or brilliant green and bristling with rapier-like stalagmites. Heat tremors pulsed, as the whole were a vast roof too close under the eye of the sun. And below on the blasted acre under the peak the panting steam flashed out the supreme devotion—crumbling, clinkery and over-parched; trailed away its smear of the dull rainbow hues of sulphur from grotesque mosaics. It was a pudding of sing fresh from that great furnace of the unknown fusing point, and how alien to the cold waves and winds of the subarctic!"

Brain Growth.

The brain usually stops growing at about fifty, and from sixty to seventy it is more likely to decrease. It has been related by Canon MacColl that Mr. Gladstone's head was constantly outgrowing his hats. As late as the Midlothian campaign, when he was nearly seventy, he was obliged to have his head remeasured for this reason. Canon MacColl's conclusion that this continual growth of brain contributed to Mr. Gladstone's perennial youthfulness appears not unwarranted—London Spectator.

Oratory.

"What an oratory, Brudder Jackson?"
"Brudder Simmins, I will elucidate. If you says black an white, dat an foolish, but if you says black an white an' bellers like a bull an' pounds on a table wif hufe flats dat an oratory, an' some people will believe you."—Atlanta Constitution.

A Juvenile Wriggle.

Mother (an invalid)—Elmer, what did you do with the orange Mrs. Neighbors gave you to give to me yesterday? Small Elmer—It was too sour for you, mamma, so I put some sugar on it and ate it myself.—Chicago News.

Lead Pencils.

Lead pencils, which really contain graphite or plumbago, derive their name from the use of lead plumbets for ruling faint lines on paper before the discovery of the Cumberland graphite mines.

Silk.

Silk is considered unclean by the Mohammedans because it is produced by a worm.
